Note from the Pastor

The Making of a Pope (Part II)

Now, where were we? Oh, yes, Christ's promise: "And I will be with you until the end of time, until the end of the world." Benedictine Sister Joan Chittister was recently asked on the PBS Program "Religion and Ethics News Weekly," (a podcast worth downloading), why she remained a Catholic. Her answer was quite straight forward. Though acknowledging that through the centuries the Church has committed every sin in the book she went on to say, "Roman Catholicism is the store house, the treasure house of the Christian tradition; the whole notion of the blend of wisdom, knowledge and holiness. That's the Church I'm waiting for, that's the Church I'm working for." Ecclesia Semper Reformanda, the Church always in the midst of reforming itself. And it's happening again.

Last week I ended my note by saying that somehow, in the midst of darkness, a light begins to shine. And when the light pierces the darkness we are automatically and immediately attracted to it (except maybe those who have something to cover up).

Six months ago, the unthinkable happened. A living pope resigned. It's the first time something like that happened in 400 years. Recently our Emeritus Pope Benedict stated that he had a vision of God showing him what to do. And now with Pope Francis firmly seated in St. Peter's chair, Benedict is convinced he did the right thing. The new light in the Church? The new pope himself.

Something new is afoot. The spirit continues to move. And one of the ways you can be sure that it is indeed the Holy Spirit is that it almost always surprises. When the cardinals went into the conclave they were looking for someone who could clean up the Curia, the banking mess and continue to address the devastation of clergy abuse. They were looking for someone well-organized and methodical and someone who had a track record of Catholic Orthodoxy. And when the white smoke cleared from the Sistine Chapel, this sweet little man from Argentina, Jorge Mario Bergoglio, stepped out on the balcony, waved and smiled. The Holy Spirit was doing his (her) work. The Church was to experience a new beginning, a new light.

Our new Holy Father is a pope of firsts. He is the first Jesuit, the first to take the name Francis, and the first in many centuries to shred all the trappings of the papacy. The Capa magna is gone, the papal apartment is empty and he carries his own briefcase. Thus far, when it comes to this new pope, the silence of the American bishops has been deafening. Many are not quite sure what to do with him. He is not what they expected. Surprise! The Holy Spirit is always full of surprises.

On the heels of Vatican II, many bishops worldwide were appointed by Pope Paul VI, who had a sense of what the Council was calling for: an awakening of the Church living in and speaking to the modern world. It was at this time that in South America, liberation theology was born with its emphasis on the, "fundamental option for the poor." To many in Rome, including the new Pope John Paul II, this looked like the Church was getting in bed with Marxism. And while John Paul stood firm with the Solidarity movement in Poland against the Communists, he came down hard on anyone who looked like they were going to work with them. And so new bishops were appointed with the mind of the new pope. Bergoglio was one of them. As the Jesuit provincial and seminary rector, he forbade students to read the works of Leonardo Boff and Gustavo Gutierrez, liberation theologians both. And so, with orthodox credentials in hand, he was named bishop by the new pope and then something happened. He began working with the poor.

After the restoration of democracy in Argentina in 1993 and the fall of the military junta, working with the poor was much less frightening. In the slums of Buenos Aires, Bergoglio learned to see the world differently. As Fr. Augusto Zambini, a diocesan priest from the area stated, "When you are working in a shanty town, 90% of your congregation is single or divorced. You have to learn to deal with that. Communion for the divorced is not an issue. Everyone takes Communion." Now the new archbishop never altered his doctrinal orthodoxy on such matters but he would not allow dogma to overrule the priority of pastoral concern. As one of the slum priests said, "He was never rigid about the small and stupid stuff because he was interested in something deeper." And the deeper was the people, especially the poor. As he went out with them, lived with them, cried with them and rejoiced with them, he began to see the world through the eyes of those at the bottom. The humble ones. And if you want to see anything clearly, you can't see it from the top. At the top you are told what people think you want to hear. Do you want to know the truth? Talk to the cleaning lady, the gardener, those at the bottom. This the new archbishop and soon to be cardinal did. And it was transforming.

Something old always has to be let go of for something new to come in. The old wine skins of rigidity have to be replaced with new ones both supple and flexible to receive the new wine of the Gospel, "and the poor have good news preached to them."

And preach he will. Our new transformed pope can't stop talking, often to the consternation of those around him, off the cuff. What pops into his mind seems to come out of his mouth. And he appears to be the Henny Youngman of the ecclesial set, the king of the one-liners. Here are just a few.

- ♦ On permission to make mistakes and get into the mess of things, "Nobody who has opened up new paths leaves without scars on his body,"
- ♦ On enabling the laity, "If you can, rent a garage and find some willing laymen, let him go there, do a little catechesis, and even give Communion.
- ♦ On Mercy, one of the pope's greatest themes, "Mercy is the Lord's most powerful message, it is not easy to trust oneself to the mercy of God – but we must do it." He goes on to say, "From Jesus, we will not hear words of contempt or condemnation, but only words of love, of mercy that invite us to conversion. 'Neither do I condemn you. Go and sin no more...' The problem is that we get tired of asking for forgiveness."
- ♦ On getting out of our ivory towers and going forth to proclaim the Good News to the world, "May the whole of ministry be in a missionary key. We must come out of ourselves and grow in boldness. A Church that does not go out sooner or later gets sick in the vitiated atmosphere of her enclosure. Self-reference, the typical illness of the shut-in Church... a kind of narcissism that leads to spiritual bankruptcy worldliness and sophisticated clericalism. I prefer a thousand times an injured Church to a sick Church."

- ♦ On taking care of those in need, "Rather than run away from those who are not healthy, we should run toward those who need healing."
- ♦ On income inequality, "The income of a minority is increasing exponentially and that of the majority is crumbling. The worship of the golden calf of old has found a new and heartless image in the cult of money and the dictatorship of the economy which is lacking any truly humane goal." He adds, "The pope loves everyone, rich and poor alike, but the pope has the duty in Christ's name to remind the rich to help the poor, to respect them and to promote their development."
- ♦ On making mistakes, "Do not look at the thorns and the stones but on the small grain of soil where seed can be sown. If you have erred, do not fear, Jesus understands."
- ♦ On his efforts to reform the Curia, "I think the Curia's gone a bit downhill."
- ♦ On justice, "Never tire of working for a more just world."
- ♦ And on the Church as truly catholic, "We want a Church big enough to accommodate all of humanity."
- ♦ And one of my favorites, "How precious is the family as the privileged place of transmitting the faith. How important grandparents are for family life."

And this is just the beginning. There is a light in the darkness. It is time to let his little light, and ours, shine.

In Christ Jesus, the Light of the World.

On Saturday, September 28, Dr. Jim Healy will be presenting his half-day marriage enrichment program at Mary Queen of Heaven: Marriage and the Eucharist: One Hand Washes the Other. In down to earth and sometimes humorous ways, Dr. Healy will explore the profound ways in which the sacrament of Marriage and the sacrament of the Eucharist reinforce each other. CENTERING PRAYER: METHOD AND MORE

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 2013
8:30 AM - 1:00 PM IN BARRETT HALL

Presented by Phil Jackson and Bob Frazee

This workshop will be an in depth presentation of the Method of Centering Prayer as taught by Contemplative Outreach, the organization founded by Thomas Keating.

Fr. Thomas Keating is a Trappist monk currently living at the monastery in Snowmass Colorado. Together with Fr. William Menninger and Fr. Basil Pennington, they have developed and have written extensively on Centering Prayer as a method of entering into Contemplative Prayer.

The workshop will be informative and provide opportunities to practice the method. No prior experience is required. The workshop is appropriate for beginners and those who want to deepen their experience of centering prayer.

PEACE AND JUSTICE: PRISON MINISTRY

At our most recent Peace and Justice Ministry meeting, we had a guest from IC parish who is a part of the Kairos Retreat Ministry for people who are incarcerated. He will be a part of the team giving a retreat weekend at the Pontiac Correctional Center on Sept. 26 thru the 29. It will be for approximately thirty inmates who desire to start or deepen a relationship with Jesus Christ. These men are looking for hope in a hard environment and desperately need our prayers!

The Kairos retreat team has a Prayer Vigil Sign-up Sheet for every hour of the retreat and they are asking for our help to fill the time slots. One hour of our time to pray for these men to accept the love of Christ into their lives is all that is needed. You can pray alone or with family and friends. To sign-up for an hour of prayer go to:

[http://www.3dayol.org/Vigil/GetVigil.phtml?
commid=1985&pvid=8655](http://www.3dayol.org/Vigil/GetVigil.phtml?commid=1985&pvid=8655)

Click on the "sign-up" box in blue next to the time you wish to pray and fill in the boxes next to the time. Most of us are not called to enter a prison to minister to the people there but we are called to show them Christ's love. Jesus said in Matt. 25:36, "I was in prison, and you came to Me." Let us go to these men with our heartfelt prayers who are children of God regardless of their circumstances.
